- Research and Development Cell:

In 2020, SBUP launched its Research and Development Center to further its dedication to innovation and intellectual achievement. Since its establishment, the institute has developed into a thriving center for scholarly advancement and research activity. The center was pleased to announce that five research fellows have successfully completed their Ph.D. degrees by the 2023–24 academic year.

The Department of Research and Development at the university is home to thirty eminent Ph.D. guides who contribute to a vibrant research community. These mentors support and work together with 118 Ph.D. candidates who are research scholars in a variety of fields, fostering a vibrant academic community.

Beginning with the 2024–2025 academic year, the R&D department plans to launch a Junior Research Fellowship as part of its ongoing efforts to develop and assist emerging researchers. The purpose of this fellowship is to give rising researchers resources and financial support so they can concentrate on their research without worrying about money.

The research and development department takes the initiative to create a vibrant research culture by planning multiple workshops and seminars. These conferences address a broad range of subjects, such as data analysis methods, publication tactics, academic writing, and advanced research methodology. These programs give researchers the abilities and information need to carry out excellent research and successfully communicate their findings.

Understanding the value of providing incentives for research, the R&D department provides faculty members with a range of financial support options. This includes paying for conference and workshop registration fees, providing seed money for new research projects, and offering rewards for publishing in high-impact journals. In addition to encouraging faculty members to conduct research, this kind of funding makes sure that their findings are seen by a larger student body.

Additionally, the department publishes "The Balajian – Journal of Management Research," a biannual journal with an ISBN. Faculty and research academics can publish their work, exchange ideas, and benefit the larger academic community by using this publication as a platform. The university's expertise in this field and dedication to expanding knowledge in management research are reflected in the journal's concentration on management research.

Alumni

The alumni of SBUP have established an association. This association serves as a platform for alumni to stay connected with the university and each other. Each year, alumni return to the institute to interact with current students, sharing their experiences and providing valuable guidance on how to make the most of their college years to achieve career success. These interactions include guest lectures, workshops, and one-on-one mentoring sessions, offering students insights into various industries and career paths.

Furthermore, alumni working across different parts of the world regularly come together for informal gatherings and reunions. These events are not only opportunities for social interaction but also play a crucial role in building and strengthening professional networks among alumni. Such gatherings provide a forum for exchanging ideas, discussing industry trends, and exploring potential collaborations and opportunities.

Through these activities, alumni can develop a robust professional network that benefits their career growth and personal development. The association also organizes online webinars and virtual meetups, ensuring that alumni who cannot attend in person still remain engaged and connected.

Additionally, the alumni association plans to launch various initiatives, such as an alumni mentorship program, career counseling sessions, and industry-specific networking events, to further support the career advancement and continuous learning of both current students and alumni. These efforts contribute to creating a strong, supportive community that fosters lifelong connections and professional development.
